Adoremus – Time before the Blessed Sacrament

The Lord will fight for you, and you only have to be silent.

Keeping Silence

Contemporary research tells us that silence helps to restore well-being and keep our mental health sound. What is more, silence is a key to our own inner world where we meet God face to face. It is not selfish, therefore, to regularly seek a quiet sanctuary in the midst of the noises of our daily living. Time before the Blessed Sacrament offers a precious opportunity to spend a few moments in a quiet environment and allow the noises fade into the background so that we can focus on what is in front of us: the silent sacrament of God's love.

Keeping silence is not just about the absence of irritating or disturbing external noises. Although it helps to seek a quiet spot, it often becomes all the more obvious in the external silence how much is happening on the inside. It is not unusual to become aware of our constant internal chatter, or images, hopes and memories that whiz past the stilled awareness like racing boats. Although seemingly disturbing, it is important to let them pass without clutching onto them, observing them without judgement and without any intent to change or influence them. It may help to keep our eyes fixed on the other shore, as it were, noticing the stillness and silent presence of God.

When the mental disturbances fade into the background, a deeper silence becomes prominent. It is this silence we can enter and savour, noticing its quality because through it God speaks. And it is this silence which remains with us when we leave our quiet spot and immerse ourselves back in the noisy world.

Jesus and Silence

According to tradition, Jesus was born in the silence of a night. It happened some four hundred years after the last word of God had been recorded in the Hebrew Scripture. These four hundred years of silence seemed to have been a fitting preparation for the Word of God to become a human being.

Jesus also went to his death silently, likened to a lamb brought to a slaughter. It was not only a sign of Jesus' fulfilling the Old Testament prophecies, but also a space to acknowledge the silent activity of God in the midst of human violence and noise. As many saints have noted, God specialises in being most eloquent in silence, and transforming the world by it.

CAFOD Family Fast Day is on 5th October, this year – we are invited to share in the abundance that God has given to us. We are asked to fast and pray. On Fast Day we are asked to eat simply, and give the money saved to CAFOD, so that our sisters and brothers overseas may benefit from 'New Water Systems' in remote areas. There will be a retiring collection after all masses next weekend, please take a gift aid envelope if you are a tax payer.
